

ABSTRACT

A goods delivery system and an operating method thereof, which can conveniently perform receipt or return of goods purchased in an online shopping mall through a network such as an Internet, are disclosed. The present invention performs delivery of the goods or temporary custody of the returned goods in a completely unmanned state, and allows only a right recipient to receive the goods.